

Re: Performance problem when accessing a mdb file on the server

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Access/microsoft.public.access.externaldata/2004-07/0132.html>

From: FlyingOliver (FlyingOliver_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 07/06/04

Date: Tue, 6 Jul 2004 00:57:02 -0700

Hi Jeff,

Thank you for your answer. Other application don't have the same performance problem. It's why I suppose there is no network problem. I will ask my Network Manager and see if we could do something on the anti-virus side.

Best regards

Olivier

"Jeff Boyce" wrote:

> Oliver

>

> Is the same performance hit obvious when working with other software? If so, other possible causes include slow network card settings and/or a slow

> LAN.

>

> How heavily used is the server on which you have placed the data?

>

> Finally, there are certain versions of certain network-based anti-virus software that interfere with Access front-end/back-end splits in a major way, possibly because of the file-server nature of Access. In at least one such situation (mine), the network gurus allowed an exception to the Access applications in the network anti-virus, and the application resumed normal speed operation.

>

> --

> Good luck

>

> Jeff Boyce

> <Access MVP>

>

>