

Re: Form to Subform?

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Access/microsoft.public.access.forms/2004-09/2662.html>

From: Rick Brandt (rickbrandt2_at_hotmail.com)

Date: 09/24/04

Date: Thu, 23 Sep 2004 21:20:17 -0500

grep wrote:

> I've created a form that I want to use as a sort of popup subform, > activated by a button press on the main form. The problem is that, since > the form's already been created, there doesn't seem to be a way to make > it into a subform. I mean in that I don't get properties available for > Parent and Child relationships, so the linked field doesn't get > automatically passed to the subform.
>
> Is there a way to change that?
>
> grep

For a form to be used as a subform and make use of Master/Child Link properties then it must be used within a subform control embedded on the main form. If you open it as a separate popup form then it is NOT a subform and any behavior that relates it to the calling form will all have to be handled in code by you.

--

I don't check the Email account attached to this message. Send instead to...
RBrandt at Hunter dot com