Hello,

I have made a form where I have put in text for each of the ControlTip Text fields so that the first time user when hovering over the field on the form will see what they are supposed to do. The problem is that once the user is accustomed to what the field's function is, I'm afraid that they will get annoyed with the continual text tip windows that keep popping up whenever they are hovering over that field. What I want to know is if there is a way to shut-off the tips whenever the user wants to. You know like a radio button that says "Toggle tips" or something like that.

TIA for your replies.
