Hum.....John, do you think I was a bit harsh? (I a being honest here....I kind of thought was being quite nice...but it does seem I might have been a bit harsh..and that I do NOT want to come access as!!

I do tend to use CAPS as a stress word...and perhaps I should actually use something like *this* (ie: surround the post with asterisks).

I am certainly pointing out that using the activeX scroll bar with ms-access don't make sense...but I also carefully stressed that the poster MOST certainly may need the control..and to expand on what one is trying to accomplish.

At any rate..if I seem a bit harsh...or even perhaps critical here...I give my sincere apologies to the original poster. This is not my intention at all. (It certainly IS MY intention to stress that the request of the activeX scroll control is somewhat strange in regards for use with ms-access).

Once gain, John, I do *very* much appreciate your input..and I certainly hope that my post is not one of harshness in anyway. People *are* allowed to ask questions, be they different, hard, or easy, or even questions that sometime seem a bit strange. For me to damage the welcome mat of this newsgroup would MOST CERTAINLY be a sad day...

In fact one gets *so* comfortably in posting here, that often we simply say the obvious..and perhaps lack some tact in that. Perhaps it is time for me to grab a coffee, relax a bit, .and make sure I work harder to not offend anyone as a result of me being blunt.....
