I'm trying to print a form without any data in it so that people can print them off to fill them in and then input the data into a record at a later date. I have found where I can create a print form command button, so I presume it is possible, however in print preview and when I do print it the page is blank or just shows the header or footer. I have played around with margins, page setup etc, but I just can't get it to show! Any suggestions?? I'm using Office 2000 and working in Access.

That is the normal behavior when you try to print a form without data.

Save the form as a report.

Print the report.
