

Re: Access is just to hard to understand

>> steep learning curve".
>> I now consider myself an aged beginner but I don't regret a minute or $$ > of >> it.
>> Get some sample db's and really study how they work and what happens when > a >> particular event is triggered.
>> Ask questions. I found that many times just the act of trying to frame a >> question I found the answer.
>>
>> Mike
>>
>>
>>
>> "Tom via AccessMonster.com" <forum@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
>> news:51B8FD8EECD46@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx
>>>
>>> Im sitting here in front of my computer, Ive been here all day. Next to > me >> is >>> about $200 worth of Access books, and a stack of Access information I >> printed >>> off the internet. ive just finished a community college class on Access,
> I >>> got an "A", (what a joke). Here I sit, and I still cant make one > database.
>>> This has got to be one of the most frustrating things Ive ever > attempted.
>> Im
>>> not sure if I going to just give up tring to learn Access or not.
After >> all >>> the time and effort I have put in I hate the thought of just quitting.
I >> guess
>>> all I can do is write this post. I feel like Im right on the verge of >>> understanding, but how long do I wait for that.
>>>
>>> Just had to get it out...
>>>
>>> Tom
>>>
>>>
>>> ---
>>> Message posted via AccessMonster.com
>>>
>>
>

Re: Access is just to hard to understand

<http://www.accessmonster.com/Uwe/Forums.aspx/access-gettingstarted/200507/1>

>>
>>
>
>

---

• References:

- ◆ Access is just to hard to understand
    ◇ From: Tom via AccessMonster.com
- ◆ Re: Access is just to hard to understand
    ◇ From: Mike Revis
- ◆ Re: Access is just to hard to understand
    ◇ From: PC Datasheet

- Prev by Date: Re: Access is just to hard to understand
- Next by Date: RE: Using Access to generate plain text file – get me started please
- Previous by thread: Re: Access is just to hard to understand
- Next by thread: Re: Access is just to hard to understand
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread