

Re: Gremlins

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Access/microsoft.public.access.modulesdaovba/2004-11/1341.html>

From: Dirk Goldgar (dg_at_NOdataSPAMgnostics.com)

Date: 11/19/04

Date: Fri, 19 Nov 2004 17:30:06 -0500

"Tcs" <tsmith@eastpointcityNoSpamorg> wrote in message news:jgksp055shkfn87n4e58halm6hu4rvk5r0@4ax.com
> I'm running XP, sp1 on a Gateway P4, 2.6GHz, 1.25gb RAM.
>
> *My problem is that all of a sudden the system can't communicate via > TCP/IP to our email server or anything else. At worst, it > starts...not responding. I may not be able to open something from > the system tray. I may not get a response when clicking the "Start" > button, etc. The only fix is to reboot my PC, which isn't an easy > thing to do when it starts acting like this. And even rebooting > every morning just to prevent this...doesn't he seem to help.*
>
> *The reason I'm posting here is, I think it may be a particular MS > Access mdb that I've been working on the past several weeks. But I'm > not sure.*
>
> I've tried to periodically check available memory in Task Manager, to > see if a loss of available memory is what's happening. It always > looks pretty much the same, plenty available.
>
> *I don't know what else to do. What to look at. Does anyone have an > idea? A clue? Is there some sort of procedure/program I can use to > help me find out what's going on? Or do I just need to keep a log of > everything I do, to see if I can narrow it down that way?*
>
> Is there some sort of standard procedure that I can perform on my mdb > to see what resources it takes, and what it does/doesn't release?
>
> Any help will be appreciated. Thanks in advance,
>
> Tom

Have you checked in Task Manager to see if there's anything in there that ought not to be?

--

Dirk Goldgar, MS Access MVP

Re: Gremlins

microsoft.public.access.modulesdaovba: Re: Gremlins

www.datagnostics.com
(please reply to the newsgroup)