Assuming this is an MDB (not an MDE), it should work okay.

If no other databases work under A2002 either, then a reinstall would be worthwhile. But if other databases (such as Northwind) do work, then a decompile might solve it.

Try the steps suggested here:

Recovery Sequence

Use Access 2002 to do the compacting and decompiling.

Allen,

I have checked the reference, it is neither the problem of reference nor the limited user of Winxp. I run it on my own laptop, not the company's computer.

Re: Can not open and Error Message

In my laptop, I have 2 version of Office which are ver 2002 and 2007.
there is no problem if I run it with ver 2007. There is problem for ver 2002.
Since
I want to distribute my denomination church secretary database whose versions are mostly 2002, that is why I want it run in ver 2002.

Do you think I need to uninstalled my ver 2002 and reinstall it again?.

Thanks if you still can help me.

If that is not the issue, perhaps it is permissions. For example, if you are now logging into WinXP as a limited user rather than a local computer administrator, it could be this issue that turns up in Vista too:

Hello,

Previously I can open my database in access 2002 and 2003 but since my laptop crash and I reinstalled my Windows Xp, when I run my database in Access 2002, the erroe message is:
