Is this possible.

I have a shared folder on the server with a mapped drive to it. I want to be able to restrict permissions on the files within,as follows:

1. The program within it need to be able to read and make changes to the files in that directory.
2. We need to restrict users from, creating new files/folders, copying files from that directory to another, deleting any files within that directory.

Can this be done with NTFS permissions or otherwise?

Thanks for you help.
