

microsoft.public.biztalk.general: Re: Split, Substring and other functions in expression editor?

Re: Split, Substring and other functions in expression editor?

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/BizTalk/microsoft.public.biztalk.general/2005-01/0386.html>

From: Jon Flanders (jfland_at_develop.com)

Date: 01/12/05

Date: Tue, 11 Jan 2005 16:40:38 -0800

Create a .NET class with a method that takes a string and returns an ArrayList and call it from your expression shape.

```
--
Jon Flanders [DevelopMentor]
http://staff.develop.com/jfland/
http://www.develop.com/courses/biztalk
"Sam Loveridge" <sloveridge@adelaidebank.com.au> wrote in message
news:e4Jc76D%23EHA.2804@TK2MSFTNGP15.phx.gbl...
> Any suggestions on how to get around it? There doesn't even appear to be a > substring function.
>
>
> "Jon Flanders" <jfland@develop.com> wrote in message
> news:OkmDv2D%23EHA.1404@TK2MSFTNGP11.phx.gbl...
> > I've never tried - but I am guessing it relates to the fact that XLANGS > (the > > language you use in the Expression editor) doesn't support Arrays
> >
> > --
> > Jon Flanders [DevelopMentor]
> > http://staff.develop.com/jfland/
> > http://www.develop.com/courses/biztalk
> > "Sam Loveridge" <sloveridge@adelaidebank.com.au> wrote in message
> > news:%23aEHXoD%23EHA.1408@TK2MSFTNGP10.phx.gbl...
> > > Hi all. I'm trying to take a string variable in the BizTalk Expression > > > Editor in an orchestration and split it on a pipe. Does anyone know > > > what > > > happened to the split function?? This must be a simple thing I've > > > overlooked. I've declared a variable of type System.String, but > > > intellisense > > > does not show all the string functions. I can see Join, but no Split
...
> > am
> > > I going mad???
```