

microsoft.public.biztalk.server: Re: Creation of Adaptor FILE Configuration Store entries FAiled.

Re: Creation of Adaptor FILE Configuration Store entries FAiled.

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/BizTalk/microsoft.public.biztalk.server/2004-08/0045.html>

---

From: Jeff Lynch (jeff.lynch\_at\_houston-lynch.com)

Date: 08/12/04

Date: Thu, 12 Aug 2004 18:01:48 -0500

It looks as if the account you were logged in as did not have full access to SQL or was not a member of the machine's administrators group. To install you must

- a.. Log on as either the Administrator or as a member of the local Administrators group
- b.. Have administrative privileges on the Microsoft® SQL Server™ 2000 computer

--

Jeff Lynch

"A BizTalk Enthusiast"

<http://dotnetjunkies.com/WebLog/jlynch/>

"zaz" <zazo@yalla.com> wrote in message
news:%23vX39xJgEHA.904@TK2MSFTNGP09.phx.gbl...

> Dear all

> While i was configuring BizTalk 2004 I got the following error (the stage > was Creating BizTalk Hosting)

>

> Creation of Adaptor FILE Configuration Store entries FAiled.

> The Remote Procedure CALL Failed and didn't execute.

>

> Configuration of my machine.

> P3

> 256 ram

> Windows XP Professional with SP1

> Sql server 2000 with sp3

>

> I was in the domain of company then i logged off and worked on the local > machine

> How can i Configure it on the domain

>

> I got the same error

>

> The event log entries which give warning or errors.

>

> The Group Policy client-side extension Security failed to execute. Please > look for any errors reported earlier by that extension.

>

> Security policies were propagated with warning. 0x5 : Access is denied.

>

> Please review the detailed log security\logs\winlogon.log under Windows root

> to troubleshoot the application of security policy.

Re: Creation of Adaptor FILE Configuration Store entries FAiled.

microsoft.public.biztalk.server: Re: Creation of Adaptor FILE Configuration Store entries FAiled.

- > Your quick response will be highly appreciated
- > Best Regards
- >
- >
- >