

Re: Exam 70-292 – KNOWN ISSUE (UK) + 70-296 + 70-29n

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Certification/microsoft.public.cert.exam.mcse/2004-03/1547.html>

---

From: Jesse Cornelson (mrlullabye_at_sntg.net)

Date: 03/12/04

Date: Fri, 12 Mar 2004 07:52:46 -0600

The first test I ever failed was actually supposed to be my last to get my MCSE on 2000. It was migrating an NT4 domain to a Win2k Domain. The Testing machine was decrepid and locked up no less then 6 times during my test. I failed. Instead of whine about the besting experience I admit I did not fully understand the migration process.

So sometimes I could see where that would cause a problem, but my motto is if you fail a test you either did not pay attention. Or you do not know the product..... the way microsoft wants you to.

Goodluck on the retest

"kat" <eternalbliss@NOSPAM.techie.com> wrote in message
news:4050dde4$1@obsidian.gov.bc.ca...

> Actually, the above usually happens to those who use dumps. "good"
> network admins prevent those kind of situations.

>

> **hangs head**

>

> I'm a horrible admin.

>

> JaR wrote:

> > Cliff Dabbs opined, On 3/11/04 7:52 AM:

> >

> > > With 70-297, my point was primarily that there wasn't enough time for > > > the exam. There are problems with the exams, which are generally > > > compounded by the fact that you're supposed to be super human to read > > > the exam in the time given, which comes back to the question, it is a

> > > english comprehension and speed reading exam, or a microsoft technical > > > design exam.

> > >

> > > Timing/crashing problems are the last thing you need when your trying > > > to concentrate under stress....

> > >

> > > I saw grown men walking out of the exam room crying...having > >> experienced the stress the 70-297 exam eflicted on them!

> >>
> >
> > Oh, I dunno. Compared to having a server crash in the middle of a > > workday, 60 users screaming bloody murder because they can't use their > > apps, customers freaking out because they can't ring tickets, the boss > > and his boss breathing down your neck, and the phone ringing off the > > hook on all five incoming lines...
> >
> > If a freaking test reduces one to tears, they are definately going into > > the wrong career field.
> >
> > But then in a perfect world the above scenario never happens, right?
> >
> > JaR
> > Optomistic Thug
>
> --
> Kat MCNGP #29
>
> */* Who you lookin at? */*
>