

Re: How to buy an effective dot net ASP.net web sever (IIS and MS Access)

---

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/DotNet/microsoft.public.dotnet.framework.performance/2005-07/msg00021.htm>

---

- From: "Dan V." <danv@xxxxxxx>
  - Date: Thu, 7 Jul 2005 14:46:13 -0400
-

More details:

It is a Dell Poweredge 1500SC running Windows 2000 server, and use dot net, asp.net and iis 5 on a Pentium 1266 MHZ (dual capable I think– one processor in now) and 1 GB RAM and Access 2002. There is 460 MB free on the C: partition and plenty on the D: drive.

"Dan V." <danv@xxxxxxx> wrote in message

news:uh1bJmwgFHA.3616@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

- > How to buy an effective dot net ASP.net web sever (IIS and MS Access) ?
- > We will go with IIS 6 with the new web server if it is required.
- >
- > We currently use the latest dot net, asp.net and I think the original iis 5
- > on a pentium 1.2 GHZ and 1 MB RAM and Access 2002.
- > Our Database queries are extremely slow, (the programmer can't change this)
- > and they take between 2 – 15 seconds to load a data heavy page, (tested for one person running locally on the web server) //local host
- >
- > We would like to scale to 100–200 simultaneous users of the Access database.
- > (I know, I know MS Access is not the best choice, but it was made and probably because it was easy to implement)
- >
- > What do you advise will give us much more speed?
- > a) more processors (I think it is a dual capable)
- > b) more memory 2 GB RAM from 1 GB...
- > c) ...
- >
- > Or give up this beast, and buy a new one. We are prepared to do this.
- >
- > thanks,
- > Dan V.
- >

Re: How to buy an effective dot net ASP.net web sever (IIS and MS Access)

>

.

---

- References:

- ◆ How to buy an effective dot net ASP.net web sever \(IIS and MS Access\)

- ◆ From: Dan V.

- Prev by Date: How to buy an effective dot net ASP.net web sever \(IIS and MS Access\)

- Next by Date: Re: Performance hit with Debug = True

- Previous by thread: How to buy an effective dot net ASP.net web sever \(IIS and MS Access\)

- Next by thread: RE: How to buy an effective dot net ASP.net web sever \(IIS and MS Acce

- Index(es):

- ◆ Date

- ◆ Thread