

Re: VS.NET-like interface: Docked Panels, Tabs, etc

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/DotNet/microsoft.public.dotnet.framework.windowsforms/2004-07/0630.html>

From: Greg Burns (greg_burns_at_DONT_SPAM_ME_hotmail.com)

Date: 07/13/04

Date: Tue, 13 Jul 2004 09:32:15 -0400

<http://www.dotnetmagic.com/>

He used to have a free version (pre 2.0?) that is still available out there.
Check www.codeproject.com, that site seems to be having a problem currently.

<http://www.codeproject.com/cs/miscctrl/magicdocking.asp>

Greg

"DraguVaso" <pietercoucke@hotmail.com> wrote in message
news:%23wTDLnLaEHA.3988@tk2msftngp13.phx.gbl...

> Hi,

>

> I want to give my application a Visual Studio .NET-like interface: With > Forms that can appear or disappear at the site like the Toolbox. With docked

> Forms. With Forms that are selectable with Tabs.

>

> I found some information about these stuff on the internet, but you always > have to buy for it, or it is a dll. For security-reasons I'm not allowed to > use dll's without having the source-code of it, So I can't use these things.

> (for exemple <http://www.divil.co.uk/net/controls/dockingsuite/>).

>

> Does anybody knows where I can find the (free!) source code for what I'm > looking for? Any help our hints would be really appreciated!

>

> Thanks a lot in advance,

>

> Pieter

>

>