I don't think that's the problem. All my projects were working fine three weeks ago until I started creating customized web parts for SharePoint. Yesterday, I removed all the dlls that I created for this web part and I reinstalled Framework 1.1 on my machine yesterday. I also ran Windows update to install the service pack that I need. I also restarted IIS and restarted my computer. After that I got a different source error:

Configuration Error

Description: An error occurred during the processing of a configuration file required to service this request. Please review the specific error details below and modify your configuration file appropriately.

Parser Error Message: Execution permission cannot be acquired.

Any ideas?
