Somehow my application has developed a dependency on the .Net framework.

It is a C++ app built much the same as one would have with Visual Studio 6.

We were happily using Visual Studio .Net 2003 with no dependency on the .Net framework. Somewhere along the line someone must have accidentally clicked where they shouldn't have and the dependency arose.

Does anyone have any clues as to where to start to look to remove this dependency?

Many regards,

Harry Hanley
