

Re: restated: VS Developer (non Admin) missing IIS MMC Management

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/DotNet/microsoft.public.dotnet.general/2004-08/1413.html>

From: Andrew Clancy (contactATachrenDOTorg)

Date: 08/16/04

Date: Mon, 16 Aug 2004 21:16:49 +0100

trying again, more newsgroups this time. Does anyone have any ideas how to allow IIS management for non-admin users in Window 2000 Pro, and deal with the errors in .Net project creation outlined below??

"Andrew Clancy" <usenet@achren.org> wrote in message news:dd2d6f95.0408160344.172b52a3@posting.google.com...

> Hi,

>

> I'm reposting this question as no resolution as yet. Couple of updates, > so re-read if you have seen before.

>

> I am trying to set up VS Developer users with non-administrator rights > debug ASP (3) in VB.Net, and of course manage IIS MMC. This has > succeeded on 3 machines, including my own – but since then it hasn't > been able to work, with seemingly exactly the same install & debug > setup. All machines are Windows 2000 Pro with IIS 5.0.

>

> My main 2 problems are:

> 1. the user cannot see the web site properties in MMC. Note: I do not > have the operators tab as it is 2000 pro.

> 2. I get all of the errors from this kb article

> <http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb;EN-US:320451>

> (but tried the resolution and it's not it)

> Note: I've copied and paste the errors below for your convenience.

>

> I have tried re-installing IIS, VB.Net & ASP.Net 1.1 (in that order), > doing the usual permission stuff (adding the user to debugger & vs > developer group, file permissions on inetpub and temp asp.net files, > etc etc). Frontpage is installed (this shouldn't matter as it is a > local box not remote debugging). And I've tried aspnet_regiis.exe > reg'ing aspnet_isapi.dll). I've tried everything!

>

> This is an absolute pain as we are all still developing in ASP 3 and > moving forward has taken 18 months so far and got nowhere – any ideas > would be great!

>

- > Thanks,
- > Andrew Clancy
- >
- > Errors when creating a VB.Net Web Application project (locally)
- >
- > Microsoft Development Environment
- > The Web was created successfully, but an error occurred when trying to
- > configure the application root for this Web. Web projects may not
- > operate correctly without an application root. The returned error was:
- > Active Directory Services cannot find the web server. A possible cause
- > for this is an incompatibility between versions of Internet
- > Information Server (IIS) on the client and the server. The usual cause
- > for this error is creating Web projects on a Windows 2000 or newer
- > server from a Windows NT 4.0 client. You can manually configure the
- > application root using the Internet Services Manager.
- > –or–
- >
- >
- >
- >
- > Microsoft Development Environment
- > Unable to set the permissions on the 'bin' folder to restrict browse
- > access. Active Directory Services cannot find the web server. A
- > possible cause for this is an incompatibility between versions of
- > Internet Information Server (IIS) on the client and the server. The
- > usual cause for this error is creating Web projects on a Windows 2000
- > or newer server from a Windows NT 4.0 client. You can manually
- > restrict browse access to this folder using the Internet Services
- > Manager.