

RE: Error using Oracle ODP.NET from Web App on Windows 2003

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/DotNet/microsoft.public.dotnet.general/2004-10/1966.html>

From: owyn (owyn_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 10/18/04

Date: Mon, 18 Oct 2004 12:19:05 -0700

When I got that error I found that my installation of the Oracle files had not given me the permissions on the DLLs on the computer. I just gave my self and the machine permissions on all the files in the Oracle folder and it started to work.

"John Kuhn" wrote:

- > What additional steps are needed to allow web apps to access oracle ODP.NET
- > resources under Windows Server 2003?
- >
- > When using Oracle's ODP.NET (9.2.0.401) from a WebForm I get permission
- > errors when invoking oracle – System Error: Unable to load DLL (OraOps9.dll).
- >
- > Impersonation fixes the error – but cannot be used as a production solution.
- >
- > Under Windows 2000 all you needed to do after installing the Oracle ODP was
- > granting read and execute permissions to OraOps9.dll for ASPNET. This was
- > done on 2003 with no effect.
- >
- >
- >