

Re: Intellisense

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/DotNet/microsoft.public.dotnet.languages.vb/2004-10/1278.html>

From: Bonj (Bonj_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 10/06/04

Date: Wed, 6 Oct 2004 03:55:07 -0700

yeah, exactly. It's not like I mind having these fancy language elements – it's just why do we have to bother typing them out if it knows what they are supposed to be and where anyway?

"Cor Lighthert" wrote:

> Bonj,
>
> The intelissense of the current C# is better with own made classes.
>
> For the rest in my opinion wins the IDE from VBNet it from C#, that is the > main reason why I like VBNet better (And read I).
>
> When that was equal I would maybe go to the other side because than the > cases, the end ; and the () would be automaticly be set in C# and this in my > opinion disadvantages where gone and would I have to type less characters.
> (And would probably import the visual basic namespace for some handy things)
>
> Just my thought.
>
> Cor
>
>
>