Heidi,

Back again! This problem intrigued me somewhat and I think I know the solution.

Right click the tool bar and select Customise. Then click Edit on your Menu bar and whilst holding down the Ctrl button, click on the "Repeat format cells" or "Can't repeat" command and drag it to the tool bar. And there you have it!!

Good luck.

Heidi,

By that, I mean that the F4 button acts as a repeat button....at least on my keyboard.

Heidi,

Have you tried simply hitting the F4 button on your keyboard?

Unfortunately, the icon is not the problem.

Re: How can I add the REPEAT (not Redo) command to Excel's toolbar?

What I need is a method to add the REPEAT _command_ (Ctrl+Y) to the toolbar.

Any thoughts on how to accomplish this?

If it's the "button" image (icon) you want, r-click the Toolbar area, Customize, Commands, Rearrange commands, set Menu Bar to "Edit", Select "Repeat Format Cells", click Modify Selection, pick "Copy Button Image"

You may now "Paste" it on another button that is on the Toolbar by closing Rearrange commands and Rclicking on the other Button and picking "Paste Button image".

Thank you for taking the time to verify that I didn't miss something obvious.

I think I might begin a new thread with this specific challenge rather than piggyback onto the Paste Special question posed in the original posting.

Do you think this is the appropriate forum for this question?

If not, where do you think I should post it?

Thanks again,

Heidi

Re: How can I add the REPEAT (not Redo) command to Excel's toolbar?

Thanks for the correction Heidi.

I had obviously not picked up on the (actually,
not so subtle)
difference.

I don't think there is a Repeat icon.
I can not find one in any category.

Gord

Unfortunately,
there
is a subtle (but important)
difference between Repeat (Ctrl+Y)
and Redo.

Example:

Mark
cell
and apply
format.

Re: How can I add the REPEAT (not Redo) command to Excel's toolbar?

Notice
that Redo
button
is remains dormant.
Select Edit
from the menu.
Notice
that Repeat (Ctrl+Y)
operation
is available
with the format
operation
activated (Repeat
Format
Cells).

Do
your have any other suggestions?

Thanks
in advance,

Heidi

CTRL
+
Y
is "Redo"
the list

Re: How can I add the REPEAT (not Redo) command to Excel's toolbar?

the
"Edit"
category.
Drag
it up to your Toolbar.

I could not locate the Repeat (Ctrl+Y)
command
in the 'Edit'
section.

Excel's
Help
does not explain how this command
can be added
to Excel's Toolbar.

you have any suggestions?
