

microsoft.public.excel.programming: Re: excel: activitaing a macro upon selection of a cell

Re: excel: activitaing a macro upon selection of a cell

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Excel/microsoft.public.excel.programming/2004-06/0029.html>

From: Frank Kabel (frank.kabel_at_freenet.de)

Date: 05/31/04

Date: Mon, 31 May 2004 13:52:08 +0200

Hi

you need VBA for this. Using the selection_change event for this. See:

<http://www.cpearson.com/excel/events.htm>

--

Regards

Frank Kabel

Frankfurt, Germany

> here is my problem ... i have created a crossword in excel. there is > a > part of the sheet which dsiplays one clue at a time. to change the > clue displayed, i have a pull-down list from which i select the > required clue number and then the corresponding clue gets displayed.
>
> now instead of i having to use the pull-down list, this is what i'd > like to have ... to display a clue i click on a cell inside the > crossword grid, the cell where the answer for the particular starts.
> of course in a case where the particular cell is the first cell for > two answers (one "across", and the other "down"), id like to have one > of the two clues (across or down) to be displayed based on the value > (a or d) entered in a pre-specified cell.
>
> can someone help me do this, please?
>
>
> ---
> Message posted from <http://www.ExcelForum.com/>