

Re: copy data to another sheet

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Excel/microsoft.public.excel.programming/2004-08/5014.html>

From: Amedee Van Gasse (nzrqrr.ina.tnffr_at_rztebhc.or)

Date: 08/16/04

Date: Mon, 16 Aug 2004 00:02:18 -0700

Tom Ogilvy wrote:

- > Using cute notation like MT to say empty just makes it less likely
- > your post will be answered. Your interest is best served by clearly,
- > simply and completely stating your problem.

Oops... hadn't read this yet. So "MT" is the official abbreviation for "empty" in English? I did not know that. In Dutch "MT" sounds like "em-tay" and not "em-tee" so I didn't see the connection. Also we Dutch speakers have the nasty habit of reading every letter that is written. So if you ever hear someone say the word "empty" with the "p" not silent, then you know he's either from Belgium or from the Netherlands.

--

Amedee Van Gasse using XanaNews 1.16.3.1

If it has an "X" in the name, it must be Linux?

Please don't thank me in advance. Thank me afterwards if it works or hit me in the face if it doesn't. ;-)