

Re: Problems programming to the registry using RegEnumKey

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Excel/microsoft.public.excel.programming/2005-04/msg04058.html>

- From: "Simon Livings via OfficeKB.com" <forum@xxxxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Mon, 18 Apr 2005 10:10:10 GMT
-

Thanks – I just tried to do it by hand and I see exactly what you mean. (I must have had Excel closed when I deleted things by hand the first time so assumed you could do it programmatically).

Thanks for pointing this out. I can stop scratching my head now and move on!!

—

Message posted via <http://www.officekb.com>

• References:

- ◆ Problems programming to the registry using RegEnumKey
 - ◇ From: Simon Livings via OfficeKB.com
 - ◆ Re: Problems programming to the registry using RegEnumKey
 - ◇ From: keepITcool
 - ◆ Re: Problems programming to the registry using RegEnumKey
 - ◇ From: Simon Livings via OfficeKB.com
 - ◆ Re: Problems programming to the registry using RegEnumKey
 - ◇ From: keepITcool
-
- Prev by Date: Re: Disable the "X" close button in an excel application
 - Next by Date: Re: Problems programming to the registry using RegEnumKey
 - Previous by thread: Re: Problems programming to the registry using RegEnumKey
 - Next by thread: Re: Problems programming to the registry using RegEnumKey
 - Index(es):
 - ◆ Date
 - ◆ Thread