

RE: Remove html markup

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Excel/microsoft.public.excel.worksheet.functions/2005-11/msg01607.html>

- From: "Ron Coderre" <ronSKIPTHIScoderre@xxxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: Tue, 22 Nov 2005 18:33:02 -0800
-

How many characters are in the cell? Is there something about the cell to make Excel think it's a formula (plus sign, equal sign, etc)?

(Anybody else have thoughts about this?)

Does that help?

Regards,
Ron

"Stuart" wrote:

> I have just tried that and it gives me the error message "formula to long"
>
> "Stuart" wrote:
>
>> Thanks for the quick reply.
>>
>> I have over 2500 products to do so that would take some finding and >> replacing. Is there no formula or script that I can use to do this >> automatically.
>>
>> Regards
>>
>> Stuart
>>
>> "Ron Coderre" wrote:
>>
>>> I think this will get you most of the way there:
>>> Edit>Replace:
>>> Find What: <*>
>>> Replace with: (this should be blank)
>>> Click the [Replace] button until you're sure it's doing what you want. Then, >>> click the [Replace All] button.
>>>

RE: Remove html markup

>>> That will leave some extraneous spaces, so do another Find/Replace for >>> double spaces and, again, replace them with nothing.
>>>
>>> Does that help?
>>>
>>> *****
>>> Regards,
>>> Ron
>>>
>>>
>>> "Stuart" wrote:
>>>
>>>> How do I remove HTML markup from and cell.
>>>>
>>>> i.e.
>>>> <DIV class=productdesc> <H3>SCALLYWAGS CHANGING MAT. </H3><TABLE border=0> >>>> <TBODY> <TR> <TD> Foam-filled Wipe-clean surface Fits most >>>> dressers dimensions: 75 x 46cm </TD></TR>
>>>> <TR></TR></TBODY></TABLE> When using a changing mat on a dresser or >>>> other raised surf