

Re: Default IIS Domain

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Exchange/microsoft.public.exchange.admin/2004-03/4770.html>

From: jerry cantrell (undisclosed_at_earth.net)

Date: 03/29/04

Date: Mon, 29 Mar 2004 11:42:50 +0800

Also, this is only the case on the FE servers, the dialog boxes are available on the BE's fine.

"Rich Matheisen [MVP]" <richnews@rmcons.com.NOSPAM.COM> wrote in message news:914f6019ac1rgtoda4333i7i1769q5t3hi@4ax.com...

> "jerry cantrell" <undisclosed@earth.net> wrote:

>

> >Our Front end servers, exch2003 IIS configuration continually loses the > >"Default Domain" settings for the Exchange Virtual Directory. Also, under

> >HTTP settings in ESM, we cannot modify the Default Domain – the whole > >authentication dialog is greyed out. Is this supposed to be?

>

> no, it's not.

>

> what role has been delegated to the user running the esm?

>

> the iis metabase is being modified by the system attendant, based on > the contents of the active directory. that's the reason the settings > you make to the leabase are 'lost'.

>

> --

> Rich Matheisen

> MCSE+I, Exchange MVP

> MS Exchange FAQ at http://www.swinc.com/resource/exch_faq.htm