

Re: You do not have permission to send to the recipient

Re: You do not have permission to send to the recipient

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Exchange/microsoft.public.exchange.admin/2006-10/msg03762.html>

- From: "saxophobe" <saxophobe@xxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 29 Oct 2006 09:41:42 -0800
-

Hey Rich,

Sorry for the late reply. The messages were coming from external recipient addresses, from multiple domains, which led me to believe it was a problem on my end.

Well, it turned out to be a problem on my end; the user, after YEARS of doing this correctly, somehow started trying to send as a DL with the same name!!! I figured this out after watching her reproduce the issue. GAWD!!!

So, mystery solved.

Also, lesson learned again: when tshooting an issue, always start by observing the user/action, if possible.

Thanks for your reply and your time! It's much appreciated!

sax

.