I have set up a distribution list in Exchange 2003. The list contain user1, user2, and user3. When user1 responds to the group, I would like it to go to user2 and user3, but user1 should not receive a copy of the message.

Is this possible with Exchange? If not, is it possible any other way without buying some more expensive software?

You could always expand the list at the Outlook client level and remove. Not recommended however.
