

Re: ADClean errors and complete lack of supporting articles

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Exchange/microsoft.public.exchange.setup/2004-07/0697.html>

From: Nitin Shukla \(\MSFT\) (nitinsh_at_online.microsoft.com)

Date: 07/13/04

Date: Tue, 13 Jul 2004 10:50:34 -0500

Hmmm...not sure which attribute it's failing on. On a test account can you try removing each of those attributes (one at a time) and running ADCLEAN after each removal? That would help us pinpoint which attribute it's failing to import.

Also I assume you are using the ADCLEAN from E2K3?

--

Nitin Shukla
Microsoft Support

(nitinsh@online.microsoft.com)

This posting is provided "AS IS" with no warranties, and confers no rights.
"Smith" <Smith@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:12078826-2363-4A96-9348-027463B9AF07@microsoft.com...

> Nitin

>

> Thanks for the response.

>

> The source user has both badPwdCount and BadPasswordTime populated.

> Resetting the password on the source user seems to make a slight change.

> Running the ADClean program now produces the following error:

>

> The reason for the failure is (Unwilling To Perform)

>

> I understand this error is related to an inability to populate attributes > owned by the system such as:

>

> badPasswordTime

> badPwdCount

> lastLogoff

> lastLogon

> logonCount

> objectGUID

> objectSid

> primaryGroupID

> pwdLastSet

> sAMAccountType

>

> plus ...

> sidHistory

>

> as indicated by articles like

> <http://support.microsoft.com/default.aspx?scid=kb;en-us;276382>

microsoft.public.exchange.setup: Re: ADClean errors and complete lack of supporting articles

>
> Unfortunately I can't see any way around this. As we are part way through > a long term migration to Exchange 2003 a number of ADC generated accounts > are present in AD and need to be linked to "real" accounts. The ADC > generated disabled accounts have some of the above attributes populated > (such as BadPasswordTime due to hacking attempts). I would think that > ADClean could get around this by ignoring these attributes ... ??
>
> How do I get around the "Unwilling to perform" error and get ADClean to > actually work as described?
>
> Hope to hear back from you . or anyone else with an answer.
>
> Thanks
> Smith