Surely there is a less drastic option. I know format and start over is great on home computers, but when this machine is in a main production where 150+ users connect this server daily. It is rather complicated to Format this machine.

Hi,

It appears that your uninstall procedure removed some vital WMI components. I would wipe / Install Windows server on the computer in question – then it should work.

I have attempted to research this issue for the past 2 weeks and have been unable to retrieve any information. I have a 5.5 server currently on a Win2K machine. I attempted to install exchange server 2003 on a Win2K3 machine. Although I had a few errors to start with I researched and followed Microsoft's technet to correct the issues. Once I got Exchange 2003 server installed, the user's of the 5.5 server were unable to connect to the 5.5 server. (It did not copy over any mailboxes or anything from the 5.5 server to the 2003 server) So, I immediately un-installed Exchange 2003. Now when I try and re-install to work on it again I receive these errors in the Event Viewer
