

Re: Disabled Accounts Receiving EMAIL on 2003 SP2

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Exchange/microsoft.public.exchange.setup/2007-02/msg00217.html>

- From: "Jamestechman" <jamestechman@xxxxxxxxxx>
 - Date: 8 Feb 2007 08:07:53 -0800
-

On Feb 7, 5:47 pm, Jim Forsyth <JimFors...@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote:

Since upgrading to Exchange 2003 Service Pack 2 last weekend all of a sudden disabled accounts are receiving email instead of bouncing it with a NDR. Some disabled accounts have forwarding rules and they are now forwarding. Is this a bug or a Microsoft "enhancement"?

Jim, see if you have this hotfix installed, if the disabled self account is granted the associated external account right, it will be able to receive emails although it is disabled.

A hotfix is available to change the way that Exchange Server 2003 SP2 handles a disabled Active Directory user account that is associated with an Exchange Server 2003 mailbox
<http://support.microsoft.com/kb/916783>

James Chong

.