

RE: /disasterrecovery

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Exchange/microsoft.public.exchange2000.admin/2004-06/1469.html>

From: Brij (Brij_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 06/24/04

Date: Wed, 23 Jun 2004 23:16:01 -0700

Regarding your point one below – after /disasterrecovery, databases are not mounted automatically after reboot. This is safety feature so Service Packs can be applied with /disasterrecovery switch as well. After databases are restored from backup system make sure 'Do not mount this store at startup' box is unticked at ESM-Mailbox store- Database tab. If this is not the case is there any error message pertaining to database mount in app log?

"Neal" wrote:

- > We had an Ex2003 server running w2k. We 'upgraded' the OS to w2003, but it
- > failed. We had to reinstall w2k. We ran Ex2003 setup /disasterrecovery and
- > let it run.
- >
- > We got some strange errors, but after applying EX2003 SP1 it 'seemed' to be
- > OK. However I have some issues that make me doubt how healthy it is.
- >
- > 1) if we reboot the server, the services start, but the databases don't
- > mount. We have to go into the system manager and manually mount the
- > databases. Seems to work fine after that.
- >
- > 2) tried to install the IMF, which was on there and running fine. It says
- > it installs, but does not show up (ticked both options). Can't see it under
- > smtp nor in message delivery.
- >
- > 3) lots of event log errors. 8197, 9175, 348
- >
- > Advice?
- >
- > Thanks, Neal.
- >
- >
- >