

Re: Adding Users from different AD

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Exchange/microsoft.public.exchange2000.setup.installation/2004-03/0401.html>

From: Jim McBee (jim_at_cta.spambegone.net)

Date: 03/19/04

Date: Fri, 19 Mar 2004 13:05:40 -1000

If you are 'migrating', then look on Microsoft's web site for the ADMT (Active Directory Migration Tool). It will move users, groups, computers, and passwords. It requires some practice, but it will do the job. If you require more advanced features (and have the money), look at tools from NetIQ, Quest, and Aelita. Once the account is created, you can select them all and create a mailbox simultaneously using Active Directory Users and Computers

– Jim McBee

<http://www.somorita.com/webcasts>

<http://www.somorita.com/books>

"Bryan" <anonymous@discussions.microsoft.com> wrote in message news:1028601c40dc4$8fc59be0$a401280a@phx.gbl...

> Does anyone know if there is an easy way to transfer user > accounts from one AD to another. Or would it be just as > easy to add them manually to an Exchange server since > their mailboxes need to be created anyway?
>
> Thanks.