Hi,

Do you remember which account you used when running forestprep?

Normally when running forestprep you assign permissions for a user account to install Exchange 2003 servers. You must be Exchange 2003 full administrator to have permissions to install servers. If you don't remember you can try to install exchange 2003 system manager only. After installing and starting this you rightclick on the exchange organization and select to delegate permissions – here you can see which account is delegated permissions and you can add further accounts if you have the proper permissions.
