I haven't tried gotomypc.com, but I do use UltraVNC (<http://www.uvnc.com/>) for remote control, and I've been very pleased with it. You do need to install a client, so you lose a bit of the universality of gotomypc.com. OTOH, it's entirely free.

For a printer prompt, add the PROMPT option to the REPORT command.

Has anyone used GOTOMYPC.com to run a VFP8 file remotely?? I have a need to access the VFP program from my home site to a server and use my local home printer. Now I can use Word and Excel remotely and print all those file but when I try and run a FoxPro report I just get printer error cancel, ignore, and help. And of course the help is no help.

I do notice that when I print from Word or Excel a question pops up asking to select a printer. Is there such a thing in FoxPro?? just tries to print without the question of which printer to use.

Thanks for any help.
