I am trying to transfer files one by one via (to a floppy disk)the export of the old computer to the new using the import – there are no folder comstructed on the new one ( it wont let me construct too much of anything). I would hope that the import wizard would do this. However, each time I try to import – it asks for a server and then says the server is unknown even tho the destination is the a: drive. the program will not recognize the import of a:*. * as a valid entry to highlight the OK.

Now I have just resently transferred files using this program to a computer at home with windows XP and everything went very slick. so what am i doing wrong this time???
