That's what I thought...maybe they are setting the whole thing up for him...even still that's kinda steep.

| Hi Rob,

| The $25.00 per month charge is very steep unless the host is custom building
| the forum himself. There's lots of open source free forums around. If your
| friend is putting up the forum himself..on his server space..then in reality
| there shouldn't be any additional charges. (possible exceptions being if
| that caused him to go over allotted disk space or bandwidth usage)

| I didn't really want to mix the two...I was just wondering if php could run
| on windows server.

|

| I think all youse guize kinda got me headed to a window server this weekend
| maybe.

| On another note...a friend of mine says his server wants to charge him 25
| bucks a month additional to run a PHP forum....doesn't that sound
| odd/expensive?? I mean aren't most php forums open source for private use?

| | Hi Rob,

| | It can be done (although I don't understand all the server side
| | hardware/software configurations needed to allow it)

| | Here's an asp demo forum:

| | <http://www.forumcrafters.com/tsj/forum/default.asp>

| | Here's a php one:

| | <http://www.forumcrafters.com/ph/phpBB2/index.php>

| | Both on same domain but different subwebs. (Win server)

| | They look the best yet..price and features.

| | How do you do PHP and ASP on same server? Is there a PHP emulator or
| | sumpin'?

| | I've been very pleased with my hosting company, ehostingbiz.com. They
| | are

| | pretty cheap and have FPSE and ASP.NET support. The only thing about
| | them

| | that stinks is that they offer commission on referrals, but it's a real
| | pain

| | to get them to send you your money! They still owe me $66.00.

||| Jim,

||| You never weighed-in with any recommended hosts for Windows Servers. Do
||| you

||| have any?

|||

||| I've found in my town that offers Windows 2003 at a reasonable price
||| 14.95

||| pm, with 3 free months – they seem a little "big" though. They also
||| offer

||| xnux so I could go either way. I'd prefer all my webs in at least one
||| place

||| if possible, even if I go linux on one, windows on three...that kinda
||| thang.

||| I'm probably "researching this to death" again.

||| ASP is hardly "FrontPage proprietary."

||| I would never host anywhere other than Windows. I run several Web
||| sites,

||| and all of them are on Windows servers. Some of them are ASP or
||| ASP.NET

||| and

||| others are just static. I think you'll have a lot less heartache on a

||| Windows server. How many posts do you read here everyday that are
||| caused

||| by

||| the case-sensitivity of *nix?
