the easiest way is to make an asp page think of it like a directory listing..

you know if you have allow directy browsing enabled on the web server how ugly it looks and there is asp code out there that you can use to do the same thing then you just modify to display the jpg file as an image instead of listing the file name

i've got some simple code if you want it? email me..

i'm sure it would be better to post in in an asp news group
