You need to expand the thread – usually has a "+" or "-" for expand/contract threads, and yes depending on the discussion generated for each post, they can get lost in the depth of it.

It is the decision of the user whether they want a reply by email – and usually they would use a fake email address as you say, to prevent spam, or reduce it at least.

Why do people want "private" replies to posts when a whole hoarde of people (the group's members) can help out with their suggestions?
