I just installed the upgrade version of 2003. I was already using 2002 and have published my site to my server many times without any issues. When I tried to publish my site for the 1st time using 2003, I am getting a message that there are files in my site that have a "conflict" and it asks if I want to ignore and continue up loading or to over write them. The message continues to explain that if I over write them I will lose them. Has anyone heard of this? What do I do? 2nd problem, when I do publish my site, I was choosing to ignore so those files would not be lost. Once complete, it says I successfully published my site and when I go to view it on the web, the update I have made do not appear. Is it because I need to re-design my site in 2003 and by using the site that was created in 2002 is causing problems?
