Frontpage 2000, Windows XP.

I need to edit JSP files.

In the configure editors dialog I have set .jsp to FrontPage and it works. However, close Front page down and it "forgets" the existence of JSP files.

Next time I open the program and edit a JSP file it tries to save it in a temporary folder. I have to go through the hassle of reconfiguring editors again.

What is this all about? I'm sure the installation on my previous computer (Win2000) didn't do this.

TIA for any help.

fido
