Has anyone used this router to setup connections between W98 and up clients to W98 or W2k systems. I have an older box setup as a W98se server, still running to well to abandon, and a W2k running for the same reason. Most connections will be from XP clients but some will be from older w98 and up boxes I have no real control over the client boxes as they are students obtaining what they can afford. I want to give them access to assignments, etc. from home since some have limited travel abilities as well.
