

Re: Odd Ports Being Allowed

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/ISA/microsoft.public.isa/2004-05/0336.html>

---

From: Phillip Windell (_at_)

Date: 05/12/04

Date: Wed, 12 May 2004 10:43:58 -0500

The Web Proxy Service is basing permission on a per-user / per-protocol bases. HTTP is still HTTP no matter what port the destination is running thier site on.

This is the way it is supposed to work.

--

Phillip Windell [MCP, MVP, CCNA]
www.wandtv.com

"Tim D" <mammoth@NOSPAMchartermi.net> wrote in message news:%23vw9f7COEHA.1644@TK2MSFTNGP09.phx.gbl...

> I have a quick question and hopefully it will only require a simple answer.

>

> I have a protocol rule set to allow HTTP, HTTPS, and FTP Download out. The > Site rule is set to allow folks to go to any site.

>

> Now, when folks go to sites and specify a port number such as:

>

>

http://203.199.70.225:8080/cgi-images/indiatimes/timesclassifieds/dec0403/tailor\_180x200.gif

>

> They are being allowed out. The rule that is being applied is the one that > only allows HTTP, HTTPS and FTP Download. So this is a tad confusing as to > why they are getting out. The entry shows up in the Web Proxy log, so I know

> it's not a Firewall Client issue.

>

> Here is the log snippet:

>

> xxx.xxx.xxx.xxx DOMAIN\username Mozilla/4.0 (compatible; MSIE 5.5; Windows > NT 5.0) Y 2004-05-12 13:44:56 w3proxy SERVER - 203.199.70.225
203.199.70.225

> 8080 1438 649 11236 http TCP GET

>

http://203.199.70.225:8080/cgi-images/indiatimes/timesclassifieds/dec0403/tailor\_180x200.gif

> image/gif Inet 200 0x40800000 Allow - Normal Web Access Site Allow - All

>

> So I'm a little baffled on why this is being allowed out. The "Allow - > Normal Web Access" rule only allows HTTP (port 80), HTTPS (port 443), and > FTP Download (port 21) out. Yet, it seems to be allowing 8080 (as well as > other ports) to go out as well.

>

> Does anyone know why this is?

>

> Any help would be appreciated.

Re: Odd Ports Being Allowed

microsoft.public.isa: Re: Odd Ports Being Allowed

>
> Thanks,
> Tim
>
>