

Re: What this port is used for, ISA<->IIS

---

Source: <http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/ISA/microsoft.public.isa/2005-06/msg00465.html>

---

- From: "Sergio Fonseca [MVP]" <fonsecase@xxxxxx>
  - Date: Sun, 26 Jun 2005 21:35:42 +0100
-

Hi Marlon,

Use ISA and IIS use different ports from each other.

Qualquer sugestão deve ser testada antes de aplicada – www.gupade.org

"Marlon" <marlon-nospam@xxxxxxxxxxxxx> wrote in message
news:efd79MNeFHA.2688@xxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxxx

> Note:I posted this under IIS newsgroup as well.

>

> Win2003, IIS6.

> Under "Internet Information Services/Web Sites" snap-in, I've created a

>

> "Mysite" site.

>

> If I click "Properties", "Web Site" tab, I see the following information:

> TCP Port=8080 SSL=443

>

> I published this site via ISA 2004. In ISA I setup a web listener to

> "listen

> on port 8080" and "SSL=443".

>

> Then when I browse

> <https://mysite.mycompany.com>

>

> I take traces and I see no indication of port 8080 being in use. Netmon > doesn't show that packets use port 8080 at all neither on the client or > the > server during the request to <https://mysite.mycompany.com> (all the > communications are happening over SSL).

>

> The strange part is this:

> Prior to 'open' port 8080 in our main edge Checkpoint firewall, the site > was > unreachable from the "Internet".

> Perhaps even more strange, after opening the port in the edge firewall and > make the whole thing work, I go back to the edge firewall and I see *no* > hits in the access-list related to port 8080.

>

Re: What this port is used for, ISA<->IIS

> What would this port 8080 be used for this in this situation ? I am > curious.
>
>
>

---

• References:

- ◆ What this port is used for, ISA<->IIS
◇ From: Marlon

- Prev by Date: Re: Isa server 2004 continously asks for password
- Next by Date: Re: Isa server 2004 continously asks for password
- Previous by thread: What this port is used for, ISA<->IIS
- Next by thread: No need for "intra-array" config with Win2003SP1?
- Index(es):
  - ◆ Date
  - ◆ Thread