

Re: Include IE in DLL ...

Source:

http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/InetSDK/microsoft.public.inetsdk.programming.webbrowser\_ctl/2004-03/0126

---

From: Michael Tissington (michael_at_nospam.com)

Date: 03/12/04

Date: Fri, 12 Mar 2004 09:42:41 -0800

Tried that, but I can't create a new instance of IE that shares the sessions state

--

Michael Tissington

<http://www.oaklodge.com>

<http://www.tabtag.com>

"Igor Tandetnik" <itandetnik@mvps.org> wrote in message
news:%23KteaIECEHA.3748@TK2MSFTNGP11.phx.gbl...

> "Michael Tissington" <michael@nospam.com> wrote in message > news:%23QIMAF9BEHA.2600@TK2MSFTNGP12.phx.gbl...

> > Because of limited functionality in the web browser control and > sharing > > session states across multiple windows I need to include IE in a DLL.

> >

> > I'm going to be writing a function in C++ to return an INVISIBLE > instance of
> > IE to VB.

>

> Just create a hidden window that hosts WebBrowser ActiveX control, and > return the interface pointer of this control.

> --

> With best wishes,

> Igor Tandetnik

>

> "For every complex problem, there is a solution that is simple, neat, > and wrong." H.L. Mencken

>

>