Hello,

I am writing an app to transfer files by FTP and I have a question about error handling.

The FTP Server account has been set up to use a USB disk drive as the default directory.

Occasionally the USB port stops, so I need to check if the default directory is valid by looking at the FTP Server error code when connecting.

I have looked at lists of FTP Server error codes, but I have not found any that has to do with the default directory.

The drive is used by a live Web application, so I can't easily stop the USB port and see what code is returned.

If anyone has this info I would appreciate the code to look for.

Ragnar
