

RE: DNS Program?

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Internet-Server/microsoft.public.inetserver.iis/2004-08/0482.html>

From: Greg Hurlman (*ghurlman*AT*squaretwo*DOT*net*)

Date: 08/06/04

Date: Fri, 6 Aug 2004 06:21:02 -0700

Where is the DNS hosted for your website? If it's on your machine, you'll need to open the DNS port as well.

Greg Hurlman

ghurlman*AT*squaretwo*DOT*net

<http://blogs.squaretwo.net>

"Don Wash" wrote:

> Hi There!

>

> I'm not sure this is the right newsgroup but I hope no one get mad if it is
> :)

>

> I have IIS5 and ZoneAlarm. Before installing ZoneAlarm, IIS5 works fine and > my website can be viewed via www.mydomain.com or the IP address. After I > installed ZoneAlarm no one can view my website with domain or IP address. So > I went into Program list and enabled the "Internet Information Services" and > also enabled the port 80. After that my website can be accessed via IP > address BUT not with domain name.

>

> Right after I disabled the ZoneAlarm, my website can be accessed with both > Domain name and IP address.

>

> I'm thinking it might have something to do with the DNS service on Windows.
> But I don't know where the program is located so I couldn't enable the > program.

>

> Please help!

>

> Don

> P.S. Generic Host Process for Win32 Services is already enabled.

>

>

>