

RE: Unable to see Default Website under user context on IIS 5.1 XP

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Internet-Server/microsoft.public.inetserver.iis/2004-09/2195.html>

From: zifnab (zifnab_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 09/24/04

Date: Fri, 24 Sep 2004 08:25:05 -0700

Is there any workaround to this? Giving user's local administrator rights isn't an option in our environment.

– Rickie

"doug" wrote:

> In order to administer IIS, the user has to be a member > of the local administrators group.
>
> doug
> >-----Original Message-----
> >Hi,
> >
> >I'm trying to deploy IIS 5.1 to certain desktops in our > environment. An > >administrative profile is able to see the Default Web > Site using inetmgr but > >users in our domain cannot. I was wondering if anyone > knew what permissions > >are needed for users to see the default web site?
> >
> >Adding the user to the Administrators group works so I > know it's a > >permissions issue. I've already tried adding the user to > the Inetpub's ACLs > >without success. Is there a particular registry key > users need access to to > >see it?
> >
> >Thanks for any help...
> >
> >– Rickie
> >.
> >

microsoft.public.inetserver.iis: RE: Unable to see Default Website under user context on IIS 5.1 XP

>