

RE: Using Server 2003 as desktop system

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Internet-Server/microsoft.public.inetserver.iis/2005-01/0580.html>

From: Alok Kumar (AlokKumar_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 01/10/05

Date: Mon, 10 Jan 2005 08:55:01 -0800

I don't see that as a problem. I have a Server which I use as my desktop. I think you can do more with a server than you can with XP.

Alok Kumar

"drhowarddrfinedrhoward" wrote:

- > I'm just getting ready to start learning server 2003 and was wondering if I
- > could use it as my main desktop system for everything I do now including
- > from developing to word processing to stock trading software to games
- > (though I don't play these), etc., just as if I was using XP?
- >
- > Any obvious problems with doing this? The computer I would be doing this
- > on would not be publicly used except during tests.
- >
- >
- >