Hi all,

I have XP SP2, with latest OE release, in which I have created a regular POP3 account and an hotmail.com account, which, of course, resides on the bottom of the previous one...

Whenever I move a message from the POP3 Inbox to one of hotmail subfolders (which I have previously created, either on-line or locally, works both ways), the message ends up in the hotmail inbox and I have to move from there to the proper folder, which works...

This happens either if I drag the message or select it and choose move to folder. When I do it from the hotmail inbox to one of its subfolders or back to the POP3 subfolders, either way, it works...

Why don't the messages move directly to the wanted subfolder?

Thank you in advance for any help u may provide, Roberto
