

Re: Netmeeting in Windows 2000/XP

Source:

<http://www.tech-archive.net/Archive/Internet/microsoft.public.internet.netmeeting/2004-03/0070.html>

---

From: derek (anonymous_at_discussions.microsoft.com)

Date: 03/11/04

Date: Thu, 11 Mar 2004 08:17:55 -0800

Already in the field, that's why I wanted to try and use the automatic configuration setting.

>-----Original Message-----

>derek wrote:

>> right. but because these remote locations are low speed >> PPP, they are not members of the Domain structure. Can >> still use the Group Policy Agent?

I

>

>The group policy editor is available on Win XP Pro ( not Home). Are you >configuring machines before they are deployed or are these machines already >in the field?

>

>

> >I have tried walking >> down that route as far as creating the ntconfig.pol with >> the settings that I want, but they are not logging onto a

>> domain so I will have to touch each machine individually.

>

>

>Yes.

>

>

>> I'd like to simplify this process for the individuals >> configuring these machines. Can I simply import this >> ntconfig.pol without having Policy editor on the machine?

>> Or rather, can I export the settings I have set in the >> Management Console to easily import into the remote >> machines?

>

>I really don't know -- if the users are to do the configuration themselves

>they would need administrator access.

>

>

>>

>> There is a setting to configure the automatic >> configuration of Netmeeting and it works for Win98 setting

>> it to download the nm3conf.ini but can't get it configured >> to work in 2000.

>

>

>AFAIK it should be similar on Win2000/XP -- there is a policy setting for >specifying the url of the configuration file. I have never actually used it >so I don't know whether it works as it should.

>

>

>

>---

>Brian Sullivan

>Meeting by Wire ( <http://www.meetingbywire.com> )

>-----

>Is your PC protected? --

><http://www.microsoft.com/security/protect/default.asp>

>

>

>.

>